Implementation of patient blood management remains extremely variable in Europe and Canada: The NATA benchmark project.
Author(s): Van der Linden P1, Hardy JF. 1Department of Anesthesiology, Centre hospitalo-universitaire Brugmann, Université Libre de Bruxelles, Brussels, Belgium (PVDL), and Department of Anesthesiology, Centre hospitalier de l’Université de Montréal, Université de Montréal, Montréal, Québec, Canada (JFH).

Preoperative anaemia is associated with increased postoperative morbidity and mortality. Patient blood management (PBM) is advocated to improve patient outcomes. NATA, the Network for the advancement of patient...

IS IT TIME TO START HEPATITIS E TESTING – DONOR CENTRE PERSPECTIVE
Abstracts from the 34th International Congress of the ISBT - International Society of Blood Transfusion (ISBT), Dubai, United Arab Emirates. September 3 - 8, 2016
Author(s): G Nasrallah1, E Al Absi1, N Ali1, R Ghandour2, S Taleb1, L Heday1, F Ali1, M Sam1 and A Husseiniz1 Qatar University, Doha, Qatar 2Birzeit University Palestine, Ramallah, Palestinian Territory

Background: HEV is a small RNA virus from the Hepeviridae family. Usually, HEV causes an acute self-limiting infection. However, it may cause serious hepatic infection in immunocompromised patients and pregnant women...